Story

Sportswriter Jimmy Cannon called Louis “a credit to his race—the human race,” and boxer Max Baer defined fear as “standing across the ring from Joe Louis and knowing he wants to go home early.”

On June 22, 1938, Joe Louis met German boxer Max Schmeling in a pre-war rematch viewed worldwide as a symbolic battle between rival ideologies. Louis won by a knockout in the first round. Schmeling’s defeat embarrassed the Nazis. Schmeling himself would later protect two Jewish friends during Kristallnacht, and help smuggle them out of Germany. In 1954, Louis and Schmeling met again and remained friends for the rest of Louis’s life.

The Moulin Rouge is Louis’s chance at picking up his post-boxing life. But when the need for war appears again he’ll take it, because it’s the right thing to do.

Louis will never regain his fortune, but he will die with good friends and the knowledge of a life lived right.

Pvt. Joe Louis says—

“We’re going to do our part
...and we’ll win because we’re on God’s side”

Quotes

“Everyone has a plan until they’ve been hit.”

“Everybody wants to go to heaven, but nobody wants to die.”

“Once that bell rings, you’re on your own.”

“You only live once. If you do it right, once is enough.”

“We will win, because we are on God’s side.”

“Family is forever.”
